HOST

Welcome to the Top 11 Experience from AOL. Where we go to 11. We've ranked the hottest Videos, Top Tunes and Exclusive Concert Footage from AOL Music according to AOL Members.

When you have not one, but two albums debuting in the #1 and #2 slots on the charts, that proves you have plenty of fans. But you know you're popular when your posse includes P. Diddy, Naomi Campbell and John Mayer. These Nelly fans showed up for his AOL Music Live performance. His famous buddies appear on his new albums too. Nelly collaborates Christina Aguilera, Jaheim, and Tim McGraw on his Sweat and Suit album releases.

At number 10 on the countdown is Maroon 5's Sessions performance of "She Will be Loved". It's the latest hit from their album "Songs About Jane". Singer Adam Levine wrote this track and the all the songs on the album about his ex-girlfriend. But it looks like heartache's been good for the boys of Maroon 5.

We're not sure if it was the Jesus Juice reference or the projectile vomit that provoked Michael Jackson to brand Eminem's new video as offensive.

But when Jackson demanded BET pull the video off the air, the network complied. AOL Member BenightedMoor198 agrees with Jackson, saying "people found it funny because they weren't the ones that had their hair catch fire." But Andyjean2004 sides with Slim Shady and writes, "MJ is taking things way too seriously."

SESSIONS ASHLEE SIMPSON INTERVIEW

HOST (CONT'D)

Punk fan, Ashlee recently showed up to Green Day's Session @ the AOL studios, and is now preparing for her own AOL Music Live performance in December. Next up at number 6 is big sis and husband Nick Lachey. The Newlywed's reality show might be over, but Nick and Jessica are still making beautiful music together.

At number 5 on our countdown, Atlanta's Queen of Crunk seemed to come out of nowhere. Her "Goodies" debuted at #3 on the charts. Ciara talked with us during her Sessions@AOL interview about the collaboration with her southern homeboy Lil' Jon.

Though she's #4 on our countdown this week, soon, you might have to search a little harder to find her. According to the "Letter of Truth" Britney penned for her website, she is taking a break from work to focus on her new marriage and starting a family. Even though Britney's retiring, we're sure she'll still be topping the charts. Her CD/DVD Greatest Hits package is scheduled for November release. When will Britney resume her music career? That's Mrs. Federline's Prerogative.

"It's a Good Thing!" Good Charlotte are number one! The band rank for their AOL Music Live performance of Predictable. But it turns out the rockers aren't so predictable. Who's #1 with Good Charlotte? Their top guilty pleasure is watching domestic drill sergeant Martha Stewart. Maybe she was the inspiration for the video's suburban mayhem.

AOL MEMBER SHOUT OUT asks Is Eminem just losing it? AOL Member Pink Diamonds Double 0 says: Ok "Eminem," seriously, do you think your funny? You mock celebrities in practically all your videos. Oh, MJ's hair on fire, that was soooo funny! WHEN I WAS IN LIKE..3rd GRADE! All your songs sound the same. Just get a life

WILD CARD VIDEO When Eminem isn't mocking the King of Pop, he's dressing like a queen. AOL Members picked Eminem as the Winner of This Week's Wild Card Video Pick. Marshall Mather's turn as a tube-top wearing groupie in the D12 video won the competition for the best costumed artist. Slim Shady beat out the Beasties and their '70s look in their Sabotage video and Justin Timberlake's take as Elton John in "This Train Don't Stop".

Britney, Madonna or Justin? Whose got the moves? Tell us who wins the wildcard for the best dancing in a video. Britney Spears "Oops! I did it again!", Madonna's "Vogue" or does Justin Timberlake "Rock Your Body"?
